What if...

What if you were in a car accident? Most of us have been in some sort of collision, even if it was a little fender bender. But what if it was much more serious than that? What if you survived the accident, but suffered a traumatic brain injury? What would you do?

What if your son or daughter was born with a disability? It's nobody's fault, but you see that they will require extra attention and you still have to return to work someday. Then what?

These scenarios are just examples of many situations commonly faced in our society, circumstances that require varying degrees of outside help and support.
